"Ramleela" opened to highly positive reviews. The movie also had the critics comparing it to director Sanjay Leela Bhansali's previous work "Goliyon Ki Raasleela Ram-Leela". Critics noted that the film is not for the masses but has a few similarities to his previous work. Film critic Rajeev Masand gave it 4/5 stars saying, "'Ram Leela' is a feast for the senses, the kind of old-fashioned, escapist entertainment Bollywood doesn't make often enough anymore." He further praised A. R. Rahman's musical score by saying, "'Ram Leela' is also finely tuned in terms of music. A. R. Rahman's score is outstanding, the use of folk music is excellent and the choreography of all the songs is brilliant." Saibal Chatterjee of NDTV gave it 4 stars saying, "'Ramleela' does not linger in one's memory after it has faded from the screen—there are no visual compositions like those Sanjay Leela Bhansali created for 'Devdas'—but at the time it engages one's senses, it provides an invigorating cinematic experience". Aniruddha Guha of "Daily News and Analysis" gave 4/5 stars saying that, "This film could have easily turned into a disaster but Bhansali knows how to make a movie and knows how to pick his shots. The film is a visual treat and has a good message. The music by A R Rahman is top notch."
